

Where to Stay in Spain

This is a personal guide to Spanish hotels that Steve has stayed in, with Ted and Colin, by his self or with Great Rail Journeys tour groups – the hope is that it might help people to plan a trip away from the Costas and get to know more of Spain.

It is arranged alphabetically by region, starting with Andalucía, and within each region alphabetically by town. Where relevant, the name of the province is in brackets after the town.

The focus is on comfortable, clean rooms and beds in a good location plus good service, and ambience.

It's not about food or bar facilities. Many Spanish hotels only provide breakfast - if anything (many room rates are room only and breakfast is extra). Most of the time you'll get a better value breakfast in the bar round the corner.

Steve has listed one or two hotels which he hasn't stayed in, but friends have and have reported back – any other suggestions from your own experience are welcome.

Finally, there are hotels which we visited many years ago. They are shaded grey and have been kept in the list because there is a story attached or it was a good hotel and there are up to date ratings on Trip Advisor and booking.com.

Enjoy the good places.....and avoid the bad ones.

These notes will help:

Telephone numbers:

From outside Spain the prefix is 00 34 then dial the nine figure number. Inside Spain dial the nine figure number.

Websites and booking:

The websites are the hotels own sites which can usually be used for booking. A few are in Spanish only. Most can be booked via booking.com, expedia or similar sites.

Official ratings are the Spanish Tourist Board star ratings from one to five stars.

SandT rating. The Steve and Ted rating system is as follows:

- 0/5 Avoid like the plague
- 1/5 Marginally better...but only if there is nowhere else, it is too late and/or you are too broke to get out of town
- 2/5 Well... It is clean enough.....but that's about it
- 3/5 Totally acceptable.....but not exceptional. Pretty bland – most branded hotels run by large hotel companies and their franchisees will fall into this category
- 4/5 An excellent hotel with plenty of character
- 5/5 Go out of your way to stay here....and sod the expense

Price rating:

- € It doesn't matter how cheap it is...it is not worth it
- €€ cheap as chips...marginally less greasy, or occasionally just excellent value.
- €€€ mid-priced
- €€€€ pricey...try to get a good deal online
- €€€€€ expensive.... But could be a rip-off, could be worth every euro.

The recommended hotels:

The best places to stay are where the SandT rating is higher than or equal to the price rating.

Fortunately now demolished Colin and Steve stayed here in 1988. It may have been OK in the 1940s but had deteriorated since then. Falling apart and filthy, particularly the toilets, run by an ancient screaming queen who had also seen far better days – his pinny and make-up in a worse state than the toilets. It was only 3500 pesetas.

We have had a drink and food here but haven't stayed overnight. Friends stayed there in 2018 and enjoyed it. It is in a tremendous situation by the dams in the El Chorro lakes/reservoirs national park and close to the Caminito del Rey. Modern hotel but built and decorated in traditional rustic style. We asked for a room 'con baño' and it did have a bath...in the middle of the floor, unconnected to any water supply...and the water in the toilets down the hall was cut off for 12 hours overnight anyway. Busy pedestrian street outside...with a busker playing the same  tune repeatedly underneath our window until 3am.

Excellent situation by the river, across the Roman bridge from the mosque / cathedral. Tremendous views from rooms overlooking river. Near to tourist sites though a taxi journey from station and walk from modern city. Modern, chain hotel – very comfortable, not particularly full of character, friendly staff, safes, gardens and outdoor pool in summer. Steve and Ted have stayed there with GRJ groups and by themselves, most recently in January 2017. Check online – some very cheap deals.

In Jewish quarter of the old town, directly across the road from the mosque / cathedral. Old building, pretty patio. Simple rooms. When we stayed there was no air-con or double glazing and the atonal cathedral bells rang every 15 minutes. ALL night. It has since been much improved though street noise seems to be a problem in some rooms. In February 2019 rated 3.5 on Trip Advisor and 8.5 on booking.com. Friends stayed in Jan 2016 and were happy with it (and they didn't notice the bells).

We stayed here on our first visit to Granada in 1992 when it was shabby and rundown. What we didn't know at first is that next door is the regional headquarters of the lottery ONCE, who employ mainly people with disabilities. They used it, and we were faced with an assortment of blind, deaf, dumb and limbless people partying in the corridors until the early hours (and given the state of the Spanish health service in the Franco era there were some very nasty disabilities). Once we found out about ONCE it wasn't so bizarre, but pretty grotty nonetheless – no air-con and hot and sticky in summer. It has now closed. Not a great loss – and the ONCE people deserved better.

Modern hotel, across road from old city and cathedral and close to the sidrerias (Cider bars). Grand hotel is a bit of an exaggeration but we found it comfortable and good value for a four star hotel. The gap site around the back where prostitutes took their clients (in full view of our window) has now been built on. February 2019 Trip Advisor rating 3. booking.com 8.0

Modern hotel in the town centre. Comfortable, and cheap for the quality of the accommodation. Stayed there in 2014. And Ferrol isn't as bad as guide books make out.

Modern hotel, run on very traditional lines. Just off the main square on pedestrian street. Most rooms have balconies. We were given a suite and most of the rooms look large. My rate included an excellent breakfast. Stayed there in 2016.

Modernised hotel in 100 year old building, close to Atocha station, the Prado and other main museums and galleries. Walking distance to city centre. Comfortable, large rooms. Good air –con so insulated from outside noise. Breakfast only but plenty of nearby places to eat, from a Macdonalds on the ground floor upwards. Stayed there with GRJ groups, and friends stayed there in 2016.

The oldest deluxe hotel in Madrid. On our visit in 1992 (for lunch only!) the buffet lunch was over £30. It looks impressive, but don't think we'll be staying there. Closed until late 2019 for major renovations. Most recent rating on Trip Advisor 4.5.

Large hotel in 1952 neo-classical building. Fairly central in very upmarket area near Retiro Park. Colin was smuggled in while Steve was staying here for a conference. Main memorable feature was that the bathroom was for two – two toilet pans side by side. May 2016 – Trip Advisor rating 4.5, booking.com 8.9.
